FAMILY LAW

CHANGING TIMES

No matter how amicable the break-up of your relationship may be, many aspects of your life with your former spouse or partner will need to be considered and decisions made about how best to move forward. This can be challenging, but we can help.

We are experienced, qualified solicitors and can advise you on all the legal issues that you may face.

Decisions will need to be made about your home and your finances. You may also have children whose needs have to be considered.

Whatever the issue, we will guide and support you until you reach a resolution that is right for you.

MAKING THAT FIRST APPOINTMENT

We understand that making your first appointment to see us will be a big step, especially when you may still be coming to terms with the changes that are occurring in your life. However, we only want to help and we will do this discreetly and with sensitivity.

THE PERSONAL TOUCH

We recognise that every relationship is as individual as the people who form it, which is why we will take time to get to know you before helping you to move forward with the solution that best suits you.

With our support and advice, you will be able to deal with the changes that you face constructively and at your own pace.

FIXED FEES

We can offer a fixed cost package that is agreed. We shall discuss this during the initial free half hour meeting.

RESOLUTION

As members of Resolution we are committed to a code of practice which promotes a non-confrontational approach to the legal issues that separating couples face. We encourage solutions that consider the needs of the whole family and, in particular, any children.

HAPPIER TIMES

We do advise under happier circumstances too: we can help with the preparation of pre-marriage and co-habitation agreements, change of name deeds, as well as declarations of trust.

We can also help you to prepare any documentation you may require to marry abroad, such as a statutory declaration confirming your single status.
